

Same data, three different splits: reconstructions do not move (temperature, a-halves; frame sets differ per seed)

Absolute level is a shared scene background (low-pass of the aligned reconstruction); panels differ only in recovered mid-band structure. TGV/Drizzle reconstruct in the background-subtracted domain — the common background is added back for display.